The Valley's Plan

Project Update • November 2025

Ta Skwekwiýíntsuts ta Sxwéxwel (The Valley's Plan) has been in development for the past year. Organized around a 10-year vision, it will inform our Nation's next Council Strategic Plan (2026 – 2030) and inform the development of Squamish Nations departmental annual plans.

WHAT'S HAPPENING?

There are major projects planned and underway in both the Valley and at the Nation-level. Collectively, these projects will transform the Valley in a good way over the next several years and within the timeline of The Valley's Plan.

These transformational projects provide a foundation for rolling out this plan's actions. Together, The Valley's Plan actions and the foundational projects provide a pathway, or stream, upon which we can paddle together towards our 2035 Vision.

HOW DID WE DO IT?

The timeline for The Valley's Plan was very short to make sure that it could be used to inform the next Squamish Nation Council Strategic Plan in early 2026.

The plan was completed over the course of one year, including background research, community engagement, and co-development with a 12-person Community Advisory Group that represented the diversity of voices in the Valley.

It was ambitious, but with the hard work of the project staff team and the dedication and energy of our Community Advisory Group, we got it done!

▲ BUILDING ON WHAT'S UNDERWAY:

The Valley's Plan is building on the foundational work already underway to help move Valley towards achieving its 2035 vision.

WHAT DOES THE PLAN INCLUDE?

Our plan is organized under two linked visions. Like the Generational Plan, this plan has a vision looking forward from today to 2035 and one looking back from 2035. Under the two visions are the community priorities and goals. These came from our review of past work and community engagement in the Valley, and from input from the project Community Advisory Group, who helped refine and prioritize them. As the illustration shows, the goals are all strongly interconnected.

The Valley's Plan also includes a set of twelve projects and initiatives we will undertake over the next 10 years to help achieve our goals and help us reach the plan's visions. Three will start up in 2026, including a Squamish Valley Advisory Committee. Modelled on the Community Advisory Group that supported development of The Valley's Plan, the group would help support engagement, outreach, and communications in the Valley and provide an information-sharing conduit between Squamish Valley people, Squamish Nation departments, and Squamish Council.
